What Collars or Harnesses Do I Really Need?

Collars help lead your dog through life while keeping him safe. They let you teach and correct when training. A variety of collars gives you the means to apply appropriate level of correction when needed. With practice and patience your dog eventually won't need a training collar at all. The chart below may help.

Collar or Harness	Description
FLAT COLLAR	A FLAT COLLAR is mostly used to keep the dog's identification information and for walking a dog that has already been trained to walk politely on a leash.
EASY WALK HARNESS	The EASY WALK HARNESS is the first piece of equipment used to begin teaching your dog to walk politely on a leash. Because you clip the leash on the front of the harness, it discourages him from pulling by gently redirecting his attention toward you. NOTE: Sometimes, because of the build of the dog, the harness fits better if you put the belly strap over the dogs back and the back strap under the belly.
MARTINGALE COLLAR	If your dog is not making progress on the EZ WALK HARNESS, switch to the MARTINGALE COLLAR. The MARTINGALE COLLAR simulates the gentle nip on the neck that a mother dog would use to teach her puppy.
PRONG COLLAR	If the gentle nip of the MARTINGALE COLLAR is not effective, the PRONG COLLAR provides a stronger, yet safe, correction for the strongest willed dog. The quick connect makes it easier to put it on and take it off after it is properly sized. Unlike the choke chain, the PRONG COLLAR does not cause choking or damage to the wind pipe. Since it quickly stops the dog from pulling, it's often called "power steering".
